Claire Vitale plans weddings. She's had her share of bridezillas, mothers from hell, and wedding disasters. Yet nothing in her years of experience prepares her for Nicholas Grant, corporate raider and father of the bride. When he signs her to an exclusive contract, she's determined to give his daughter, Laurel, the wedding of her dreams. Or else. She never imagines that her heart might just be the bottom line. Nick Grant is a control freak and proud of it.

He can't dictate who his daughter loves, but he can direct the wedding plans even though the wedding planner has a mind of her own. Claire's not afraid to put her foot down. And what an attractive foot it is.

Nick has a new merger in mind and this time, business has nothing to do with it. Can Nick close the deal before the minister says, "Dearly beloved..."?
