Samantha Miller has it all or does she? Her parents adore her, her friends love her, support her and don't hold back when she begins to stand in her own way and then there is Benjamin Williams, Ben, the man that she has been dreaming of her entire life. Sam and Ben share a love and passion for each other that would make many jealous, however, their love and passion is tested time and time, creating a tremendous amount of fear and heartache. Despite their wants, their needs, their love, their friends support and determination, will they ever find happiness? Or will they fail the tests that stand between them? Both are stubborn and strong-willed, but they are more determined than ever to remain together.
