We are all governed by our Nature. When our Nature conflicts with social norms the result is: Nature's Paradox. A Conflict Revealed. DJ Dennison is a well educated man in his late forties who has enjoyed a high level of personal, academic and professional success. He has been married to the love of his life for 25 years, has three fantastic children, is financially secure and enjoys an excellent group of friends. DJ considers himself to be a man of high integrity who adheres to a very stringent moral and ethical standard. As a result, he is in constant conflict with regard to his relationship with his wife. He loves her deeply and desires her immensely. However, she does not desire me, not in an intimate way. Thus, a conflict between his biology and morality is revealed. His biology creates a intense hunger for the physical intimacy that is absent in his marriage while his moral compass tells me it's wrong to stray.
