Susan is a beautiful young executive who has the world at her fingertips.

After successfully completing her college degree she easily landed a great job with a large company in New York City. Because of her hard work and careful choices everything is unfolding just as she planned. Everything except the one thing she desires the most, someone to share her life with. She longs for the fulfillment that a true loving relationship will bring her. Her mind is filled with romantic movies, and she is certain that one day she will be the star in her own love story.. One day she discovers that her true love might have been right there under her nose for quite some time. She finds herself falling head over heels for a handsome coworker. His flashing smile and beautiful eyes convince her that he is mister right. As their relationship evolves she is certain that the feeling is mutual, despite the fact that he is married. Susan thinks that her life is finally about to be complete, she has no idea that her new found love will take her on an entirely new journey full of twists and turns that she never expected.
